"Emergency Information"

Reporting locations are opened, as needed, and staffed by volunteers:
Community Emergency Response Team
Medical Reserve Corps
Cupertino Amateur Radio Emergency Service

After an earthquake, go to your reporting location when...

...you can't get through to 9-1-1

...9-1-1 says they have no help to send

...you can't handle the problem yourself

The official copy of the General Land Use Map is kept at the Cupertino Community Development Department and is available for public viewing at the Department's office.
This AASD 2007 map is one of several General Land Use Maps that will be developed in Cupertino. Street names, boundaries, landmarks, and other information on separate maps. The Base Map and the City of Cupertino's General Land Use Map and the Cupertino Planning Department are also available. The General Land Use Map is an integral part of the City's planning process and is subject to change.
This map was prepared from the adopted version of June 1, 2007 as part of the General Land Use Map. The City of Cupertino is not responsible for the use of this map for any other purpose.
